(1733) The next is Eardley Hall. That estate has been the Eardleys its beleived from the time of the building the house, and soe tooke its name from the owner. The last of the male as lived at it I beleive his name was Edward. He was a justice of the peace and an esquire. He had two brothers Richard and Ralph. Richard was a tradesman in London. He married and had a son named Richard. Mr. Ralph dyed a batchler about 60 years since and [was] buried at Audley. Edward the justice of peace married and had two daughters named Elizabeth and Alice. Elizabeth married to Robert the eldest son of Sir Nickolas Willmot of Osmaston near Derby. Note : Mr. Edward Eardley left Eardley Hall to his wife for life. He dyed about 70 years since. She lived to see her eldest daughter married and have several children. Robert Willmot Esqr. who married her lived att Eardley hall till after the old gent[le]woman dyed, soon after went and lived at Osmaston, and dyed about 10 or 12 years since. Mr. Eardley of London had some property in Eardley demean after the death of old Madam Eardley. Old Madam Willmot and Mr. Willmot bought him out, and left it as reported to his grandson who is baptized Eardley and now a Councel att Law. Old Mr. Wilmot had 6 sons or 7, one of the two. They are al dead onely Robert and Edward who were the eldest. He had one daughter. She is dead. Robert the eldest married Ursula the daughter of Sir Samuel Marrow. He has two sons and one daughter liveing by her. He lives att Osmastone. He has given them estates in Audley parish that came by the mother Mrs. Eardley to his eldest son Robert who now enjoys them and lives in or near Derby. Alice the younger daughter of old Esqr. Eardley never married. She lived with her sister Willmot at Osmaston and dyed there about 20 years since. She left the bulke of her estate of land and moneys to her brother in law Willmot and his children. It was many thousand pounds value. [Richard Parrott AN ACCOUNTT .. (1733) The next house east is the Pool House. It has time out of mind belonged to the Eardleys. It was formerly the Eardleys of Eardley Hall and said to be given some hundred years [c1633] since to a younger son when he married. The famileys of the same Eardley have ever since enjoyed it. This present Mr. Eardleys father and grandfather were both drinking men and had contracted debts soe this Eardley, William I beleive his name is, sold the Pool estate about two years since to one [blank] a Cheshire man who sets it to young Mr. Eardley. Note : Eardley has an estate at Asson, came by his grandmother, is about 50 li. per annum. [SHC 1947 51]

(1733) The next [in Talk] on that side the lane south was bought by one Richard Hildith. He was an hostler att Mr. Shaws at the signe of the Swan in Talke. I have heard he bought part of it of Sneyds. He built the house and barne. He marryed, and had one daughter. She marryed to one William Eardley a younger son of Eardleys of the Pooll in Eardly End. He was a shumaker by trade and followed that trade there untill he dyed, about 55 years since. He had several daughters and one son named William, who now enjoys the estate, but has rented a farme many years in Cheshire. He marryed the eldest sister of Mr. Richard Holt of Okeas hill. He has several children by her, sons and daughters. She dyed near 20 years since and he a widdower ever since. Note : Richard Hilditch purchased that land about a 100 years since. (1733) The tenement and land belonging to it and next to Mees Lane was the land of Lord Audley, since Lord Gerrards. It was tenanted time out of mind by the family of Eardleys [a note reads, "All the male line of these Eardleys is extinct"] by lease for lives. About 40 years since it fell out of lease by the death of William Eardley, who left 3 sons, William, Isacc, and Joseph. They were all nalers by trad[er]. William the son purchased it after his fathers death of Charl[er]s Lord Gerrard, who was last of the Lord Gerrards of the manner of Audley. He left noe issue. William Eardley after some years enjoyment about 20 years since sold it to Mr. Smith Child of the Boyls Hall, who lately deceased. Its beleived he gave it to his eldest son William who has built a front peice to the house, and now lives a batchler att it. [SHC 1947]
